

“it’s improved a lot more than just his hearing.”

“When I first noticed my husband asking me to repeat myself, I knew something was wrong. When he started losing his interest in anything involving large groups, I knew something had to be done.

A friend of ours had a hearing test and was told hearing aids could help her. Now she hears sounds she was missing and feels more involved when talking in larger groups. That’s when I knew I had to make an appointment for him.”

Exposure to loud or constant noise over a period of time, a middle ear infection, or the natural aging process are but a few ways hearing can be permanently impaired. An estimated 28 million Americans suffer some kind of hearing loss, robbing them of important sounds in everyday life. So they turn up the TV or constantly ask others to repeat themselves. More significantly, a hearing loss can make a person feel isolated or left out.

is hearing loss impacting your life?

what you can do

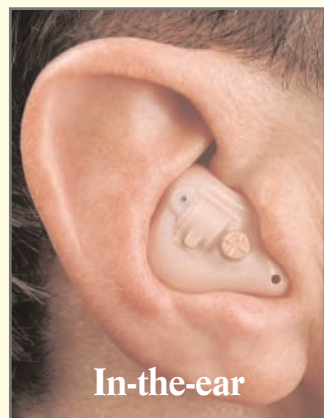

A simple hearing test may be all you need.

A hearing consultation is important, especially if:

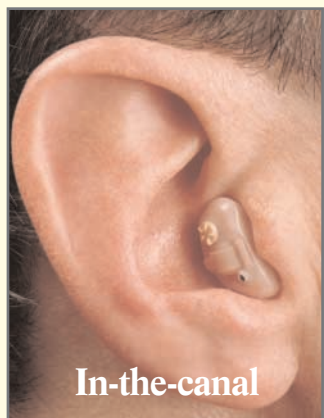

- > you find it difficult to understand others.
- > you or your loved ones suspect you have a hearing loss.
- > you have trouble hearing TV, the phone, or other everyday sounds.
- > it has been over 12 months since you’ve had a hearing test.

Today’s hearing instruments come in a variety of prices, sizes, and technology to match your hearing and lifestyle needs, including the highly popular and almost invisible completely-in-the-canal.

By helping you isolate important speech sounds from background noise, you may once again hear more clearly on the phone, understand voices better in crowded situations and engage in lively conversation of those close to you. Hearing instruments can improve a lot more than just your hearing.
